

Mural painting by Carlos Magano at FEUSP - The march of human knowledge - 1956

School of Education at the University of São Paulo

• FEUSP

AN INTRODUCTION

São Paulo
2016

A photograph of a university campus. In the foreground, there are large, mature trees with thick trunks and dense green foliage. A paved path or road runs through the middle ground. In the background, there are more trees and some parked cars. On the right side of the image, there is a tall, teal-colored sign. The sign has the letters 'FE' at the top, followed by 'FACULDADE DE EDUCAÇÃO' in white capital letters, then 'SCHOOL OF EDUCATION' in smaller white capital letters, and finally 'Universidade 308' at the bottom. The text 'AN INTRODUCTION' is overlaid in white capital letters on the left side of the image.

AN INTRODUCTION

The aim of this catalog is to provide information on the main activities developed by the School of Education at the University of São Paulo (FEUSP) enlightening its work and potential to current and future partner institutions.

The origin of the School of Education goes back to 1934, when University of São Paulo was created. Since then has pursued its mission with determination and competence. Among its main activities we find teaching, research, community services as well as the promotion of cultural activities to the population. Our main academic goals are to prepare competent professionals of education who are responsible and socially critical; to foster new relevant knowledge in the field of education, contributing to the debate on Brazilian educational problems; to publish and disseminate such knowledge to public teaching institutions by means of counseling, partnerships, courses, exchange agreements and so on.

In pursuing such goals the School of Education strives to maintain its assertion as an international and national reference in the field of education by responding to social and individual demands through knowledge and sustainable development.

Mission, activities and goals are combined into a strategic plan, assessed on a regular basis.

Within this process the involvement of the whole community – professors, students and staff – has proven to be the guarantee of the development of competencies and the ongoing advances in the organizational culture.

The results of this collaborative effort can be noticed through different indicators. In Undergraduate Studies, there are 865 students enrolled in the Pedagogy Program and 2,409 students in the eleven Teacher Education Programs.

The School of Education has 108 PhD professors, most of them working full time in teaching and research, distributed in three departments: Philosophy of Education and Educational Sciences (EDF), School Administration and Economy of Education (EDA), Teaching Methodology and Comparative Education (EDM).

There is a Lab School with elementary and high school education connected to the School of Education with 910 students enrolled in the nine years of elementary education and in the three years of secondary education. It has 53 teachers working under the professional category of educators.

There has been a tremendous growth of professors and research groups granted with external financial support as well as an increase in the number of universities and research centers with which the School of Education maintains international exchange programs.

There are 169 professionals – including technicians and specialists – that support and guarantee accomplishment of field activities. The laboratories and the teaching and research centers at FEUSP provide support to various programs. The library holds one of the biggest Latin American collection of books on education.

Thus, it is with great joy that we present to the academic community and the society at large the Institutional Catalog of the School of Education at the University of São Paulo.